FedEx Plane Crash in Tokyo (Dream) Nuclear Reactor Meltdown in Japan (Observation)

On February 22, 2009, I dreamed...

A white box truck with the distinguishing colors and logo of a FedEx truck was flying through the air. As I observed this truck, I said to myself: This is unusual—a truck flying through the air. Then the truck began to tumble end-over-end through the air as it fell out of the sky and crashed behind some buildings. It was a strange dream, but it was very clear and one I easily remembered in the morning, which is usually an indication that it might be of significance.

In a second part to the dream, I ran from the crash while someone else ran toward it, and then I received three packages shipped from Ohio by different carriers. (To date, I have no interpretation of this part.)

It turned out that exactly one month later, on March 22, 2009, a FedEx cargo plane crashed and tumbled down the runway in Tokyo, Japan. One news media outlet reported that the plane had tumbled down the runway. At this point, I knew the dream was prophetic.

At the time, I wrote: I do not know the relevance of the dream and the actual incident. Perhaps there is something coming related to worldwide shipping (world economy) and the nation of Japan, or to FedEx and its operation in the Far East.

But this wasn't all, for two years later, on March 11, 2011, Japan experienced the sixth largest recorded earthquake (at the time) in history and the worst to hit the island in centuries. It caused a devastating tsunami that led to the meltdown of some of its nuclear reactors. Nearly 16,000 perished and over 400,000 people were displaced.

Then, on March 22, 2011, exactly two years from the FedEx plane crash, Japan experienced 3 more major quakes, one of a 6.6 magnitude, and it was reported that water was boiling in one of the nuclear reactors. This was not good news, but the possibility of a meltdown was downplayed to quell fear. But, as it turns out, the fears were justified. An August 5, 2011 news article reported: the external gamma radiation has been so high this week, it went off the scale. One expert claimed that radioactive air contamination in the vicinity of the reactors was 300 times that of Chernobyl and 1000 times the atomic bomb peak in 1943. At the time, I wrote: This is not good news for the people of Japan or for the United States and the entire world, for that matter, because air contamination travels across the globe. It is possible that the world will experience significant deaths over the next 30 years due to this contamination. This is bad news!

Postscript: As the years have passed, updates on this nuclear reactor meltdown have been sparse, if at all.

Commentary

There are a few things worth noting.

First, we must not overlook the connection between the FedEx plane and Japan. The obvious connection is that FedEx is a US company that deals with the moving of goods or, we could say, it is a symbol of commerce. There is a commerce connection between the US and Japan.

A May 2019 report shows that Japan is the top creditor nation in the world and the second largest holder of US debt (16.5% of US debt; July 2019 report), with China holding the most. In light of a natural tsunami and a man-made meltdown, is there a connection to commerce or global economies? Is an economic crash coming that will emerge from the US and hit Japan like a tsunami (or, vice versa), resulting in an economic meltdown on a global scale? Time will tell how this plays out.

Second, the day of the 22nd as well as the date of March 22 seem to have some significance in all this.

On one level, it is clear that this was the Lord's way of getting my attention and ensuring this was from Him.

On another level, the number 22 signifies light. Does the dream shed some light on the meltdown and what is coming upon the world? Will some significant event occur on March 22 in some future year? Time will tell. So, we wait!

Interestingly, on March 22, 2014, I was having a strange day in which I felt like I was out of sync with the world. As I wrote these thoughts in my journal that day, I heard: Luke 8:22. So, I turned there and was struck by the phrase so they launched out. This phrase ties in with a word given to me in 1995, but I'll leave that for another time. What struck me is that on March 20, 2014, at 12:21 am, I was woken with a word: Beginning of the last phase of this age. This word goes along with many other words I have received about the end of this age and the coming of King Jesus. It also ties in quite well with the 21-year cycle I have proposed running from 2000-2001 to 2021-2022.

See 21-Year Cycle — <http://www.kingdomandglory.com/prophetic/p21.pdf>

Some might think I have programmed myself to think this way (believe me, I have wondered the same thing). However, with nearly a 40-year walk with Jesus, I should be able to discern when He speaks to me. I'll leave it to the reader to discern. Besides, what I report goes along with the particular calling the Lord told me over thirty years ago was on my life. Part of this calling is announcing the coming of King Jesus.

Dear brethren, we are truly in the last phases of this age. Whether it ends in the next couple of years (2021-2022), or perhaps another twelve or so years (2032), or even further out, nonetheless, it is coming to an end in the lifetime of many who are alive today. Believe it!

Perhaps it is time to launch out in the Lord. The other side of the lake is the kingdom of King Jesus!
