

PROPHETIC

Your message burns in my heart and bones, and I cannot keep silent.

(Jeremiah 20:9)

by – Stuart H. Pouliot

05.20.2012

Hand Sweeps Across Eastern USA (Word/Dream)

On April 5, 2012, I dreamed of a huge wall of frothy water coming upon and inundating the Statue of Liberty. It was so huge that the statue looked like one of those souvenirs that you buy in tourist shops.

Then, on April 20, 2012, I dreamed that I was holding several pages of prophecy. I was reading these with difficulty to a small group. I was not sure if they were in agreement or even understood what I was sharing with them.

Then, I saw a map of the USA from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic Ocean. I saw a hand sweep across the eastern half of the country from the river and then I heard: Whole east coast will be wiped out.

Later, I was told that the prophecies in my hand would explain the dream.

I am not sure if this is connected, but perhaps, it is. In the night, on January 18, 2012, I was given the names of four rivers along with the word fathers. The rivers were Potomac, Mississippi, Missouri, Rio Grande. As I interpret this, the four rivers represented the forefathers of our nation.

The Missouri River starts with the confluence of the Jefferson, Madison, and Gallatin rivers. The Rio Grande could be associated with the Louisiana Purchase made by Jefferson. Of course, the Potomac is most identified with Washington, who was the first president and is most noted for the founding of Washington, DC. Jefferson was the third president and is most noted for the Declaration of Independence. Madison was the fourth president and is most noted for the Constitution, Bill of Rights, and the Federalist Papers. I could find no connection with the rivers for the second president, John Adams, who was the most Christian of them all.

Clearly, there is some connection to the principles of the founding of our country that have been dramatically eroded in our time as our freedoms, in subtle yet recognizable ways, are being eroded for the sake of security. Perhaps, this is the connection to the Statue of Liberty.

What I find most concerning is the possible connection of the hand sweeping across eastern USA to a word and a vision that came to me nearly ten months later, on November 17, 2012, that I believe points to a major earthquake occurring along the New Madrid Seismic Zone that runs along the Mississippi River. A quake on the magnitude of 8.9 to 9.1 would be massive in its destruction from the Mississippi to the east coast. This is explained elsewhere.

See: Quake America — <http://www.kingdomandglory.com/prophetic/p12.pdf>